Hubert in France

by Dick Wingert

EVERY ONE OF US (HUBERT) knows Hubert, that indubitably character, that wonders through the war life-sustaining in a bad dream. Hubert, resident and the first one to go in the U.S. Now he's in France, and that help our Allies getting the things going with them. Hubert's laugh with the French language.

Here are eight episodes of Hubert's contribution to French-American relations—started on the spot by Mr. Dick Wingert and presented, with good effects, because they will help some struggling G.I. to serve the patriotic cause.

This is an average French scene. It's not intended to provide a correct picture and a correct of elements which they come in French, somewhere in the French France. This was the most that he and a few other French got from their own—perhaps others. In the first part (right) Hubert gets up for a comfortable night of sweet dreams.

Good night, sleep, will see in 10 French
